DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. Claims 1 and 21 each claim that the tape comprises a transfer mark layer laminate of a pressure sensitive adhesive layer and a mark array layer wherein the adhesive transfer marks (presumably the mark array layer) is adhesively held on the surface side of a base tape. Claims 1 and 21 each further claim the adhesive force of the pressure sensitive adhesive layer to the transfer area, the adhesive force of the pressure sensitive adhesive layer to the base tape, and the adhesive force of the transfer mark layer to the base tape. There is no description in the disclosure explaining how a laminate of a pressure sensitive adhesive layer and a transfer mark layer can have adhesive forces from both the pressure sensitive adhesive layer to a base tape and also the mark array layer to the base tape. This does not appear to be geometrically possible. In addition there is no description in the disclosure explaining how the pressure sensitive adhesive layer which is laminated to a transfer mark layer can have adhesive forces to both the base tape and a transfer area at the same time.

Further complicating the questionable geometry of claims 1 and 21, claims 23 and 24 indicate that the pressure sensitive adhesive layer is the layer holding the laminate to the base tape, claims 25 and 29 claim that the mark array layer is the layer holding the laminate to the base tape, and claims 27 and 28 indicate that a third layer, a surface forming layer of adhesive transparent material is the layer holding the laminate to the base tape. Each of these claims depend from claim 21. There is no clearly claimed order for the layers of the laminate as the claims contradict one another.

Specification

3. The specification is objected to because on page 18 it discloses that $PA \geq PB \geq PC \geq PD$ even though PB has different units as explained in the 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, enablement rejection of the office action of September 20, 2004 and because PA and PD cannot be present simultaneously as explained in the 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, enablement rejection of the current office action.

Response to Amendment

4. The amendment filed March 21, 2005 has overcome the previous 35 U.S.C. 112 rejections but has created the new rejections.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

§ 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
